INTRODUCTION

I am a motivated and driven individual who is keen to gain further experience in app development. I have held a variety of different roles in my employment, all of which have allowed me to develop different skill sets. My passion, however, lies with learning and applying language. I am very logical and have always had an interest in code and programming. To develop this passion, I chose to undertake a Java Programming Masterclass and utilise these skills to build my own Android apps. I would relish the opportunity to further develop these skills in a developer role. I am enthusiastic, conscientious, reliable, hardworking and enjoy working independently and within a team.

COMMUNICATION

Throughout my past employment, I have had to develop strong communication and interpersonal skills. As a personal trainer, I had to motivate and secure new clients, run fitness classes, and have regular meetings to monitor client progress. As a private hire driver, I communicate with a wide range of personalities and build rapport quickly.
